The DIMMER VIEW

The Jarvis-Gann Proposition

Shame on you property owning taxpayers!

Now you've upset our state's taxing bodies.

Historically, people couldn't get organized enough to slow down the tax and give-away programs dreamed up by government geniuses who thought the delicate art of milk.ng property owners could never end.

There are two things wrong with that theory. Milking property owners is about to end because taxpayers got organized. The umbrella for this determination is called the Jarvis-Gann Initiative and it will appear on the June 6 ballot as Prop. 13. We'll explain Prop. 13 toward the end of this article.

The sponsors of the Jarvis-Gann Initiative collected 1.2 m'llion signatures to qualify it — more than twice the number it required — 5 months before the election. It shows the enthusiasm — and determination — of taxpayers.

Meanwhile, to see whom it hurt, look at these reactions.

The County Board of Supervisors on February 2 unanimously urged the State Legislature to promptly pass "meaningful property tax reform legislation." However, they tempered their demand to read: "without reducing necessary public services provided by State and local governments."

Where the supervisors and the taxpayers part company is on the "necessary". People, we believe, are fed up with overstaffed regulatory agencies and mismanaged give-away programs. Few supporters of the Jarvis initiative will change unless some relief is offered in the waste area.

The Association of Concerned Taxpayers (ACT) will support Prop. 13, it says, "unless (legislature) comes up with a reasonable alternative."

The San Diego Centre City Development Board whines "If Jarvis passes, you won't have a (new) convention center or probably anything else in redevelopment."

Larry Haden, budget director for the City of San Diego said the city could lose $27 million if the proposition passes and that budget cuts would result in laying off employees.

Lawmakers and promoters may be finally getting it through their skulls that taxpayers are fed up. The Jarvis is the first battalion of the resistance army. Only property tax relief is being demanded now, but wait until the targets become some of the asinine world and national programs. Not only will the bureaucrats be shaken, but so will the several generations of free-loaders.

Until now, the financial impact was on the homeowner who believed he had a residential sanctuary as guaranteed under the U.S. Constitution. People then began losing their homes. Not to enemy forces but under the hammer of tax-lawmakers. Disagree if you wish, but too many retirees who envisioned a relaxed and comfortable late-life existence now learn they can't afford a home. Tax-and-spend officials sank those dreams.

Last week, a concerned state senate quickly gave a reprieve to a property tax relief bill that was thought to have died at its hands. It is the Behr measure (SB 1) by Sen. Peter Behr.

It was approved to become the first property tax relief bill to clear either house of the Legislature this year.

It would reduce property taxes by 50%. The Jarvis proposition cuts it 57%. As in the Jarvis, the Behr guarantees that property taxes will not shoot up as they have in past years.

It also reveals how concerned lawmakers are becoming about homeowners' anger.

What is the Jarvis-Gann proposal?

Simplified, it limits taxes to 1% of the property's market value.

It restricts increased assessments to 2% a year.

It would aid renters since increased taxes are primarily responsible for increased rents.

It would require that any changes in state tax would require two-third approval by both houses of the state Legislature.

It would permit raising of local taxes only with a two-thirds approval of the local agencies "qualified electors."

Local government would be prohibited from using property tax revenues to repay interest or principal on bond issues, even those approved by two-thirds of the voters.

There are those who argue that schools will suffer if the Prop. 13 passes and every day it becomes more likely that it will pass. Jarvis, himself, says that it won't affect schools at all because of the Serrano-Priest decision. That concept is that wealthy district are able to spend more on education than others. As a result the state Legislature has a 5-year plan to have the the state assume a greater share of the costs in order to "allocate education funds more equitably."

If Prop. 13 passes there will be a sales tax benefit to taxing agencies — a benefit they have been cautiously avoiding. But Jarvis notes it.

"Everytime anyone improved his property in the last 15-20 years, he got a hell of a tax raise."

With the traumatically higher assessed valuation dead, people will improve their property setting off one of the biggest building booms in recent history.

Property owners haven't reached the gleeful stage — yet. But there must be a lot of satisfaction in hearing the whine and seeing the tears of those who have invoked higher and higher penalties for owning a home.

There is an old axiom — which I have just invented — which tells that those who are shedding tears are in the process of learning a lesson.

THE MAYOR — Lemon Grove's Mayor Jim Dorman, left, in an earlier scene with City Manager Jack Shelver, making a joint appearance when City business was less demanding.

Veteran School Board Member Asks Release From School Post

Lemon Grove Mayor James V. Dorman, a 7½-year veteran trustee of the Lemon Grove School District board of directors has announced his retirement from his school post effective March 3.

His term has another year to run.

The decision was announced in a letter to Dr. Ted Dixon, superintendent of San Diego County School District, on February 8th.

Dorman had held each of the offices on the board—clerk, vice president and president. He was elected to the City Council in a March election and elected mayor by the council when the city became activated July 1.

As the city business took more of his time — he is also a lawyer with the firm of Dorman and Dorman — he indicated that he would not seek reelection to the school job. Privately, he had said that he might retire when the weight of city business got too burdensome to do credit to both.

"I achieved what I set out to do 7½ years ago. I leave the board with unusually good administrative personnel, a fine corps of teachers and an outstanding group of classified people.

"I have gained great satisfaction during my tenure in seeing the school district maintain its high level of efficiency, and the respect of the community. Without the valuable contribution made by district personnel at every level, this high standard could not have been maintained."

Dorman acknowledged that he didn't anticipate duties of city office to develop as rapidly as they did. "There just haven't been enough hours in each day," he said.

Dorman and his wife Jennifer have three youngsters of elementary school age; he has his burgeoning law practice and he is active in the Lions club where is past president.

"The office of mayor demands many ceremonial activities — all of which are important and take time," he said. Originally these duties took a few hours a week. Now they often take several hours a day."

His father, attorney V. J. Dorman, was also a generous contributor of time to community affairs. He was active in District (lowest rate in the county); the L.G. Fire Protection District (now L.G. Fire Dept.) and he served for years on the L.G. School board.

The mayor noted, "I'm not cutting back on my effort. I'm just redistributing my time."

A bit of that time will go to the mayor's three growing young ladies, he indicated.

Water District Drops Drought Surcharge

The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California has dropped the water conservation surcharge, a charge which was tacked on to the price of water the District's 27 member agencies used over the 90 percent limits.

Last year, the Metro Water District told member water districts to cut back water usage to 90 percent of what they used during 1976.

The District imposed this rule by doubling the prices for water used over the limit.

The Helix Water District has been uneffected by the surcharge since local residents cut back their water use to 12 percent.

According to Metropolitan Water District general manager Evan L. Griffith, the surcharge measure was intended to be only temporary.

Griffith said there seems to be adequate supplies to meet normal demands but continued a word of caution.

"Perhaps the most lasting lesson we learned during the past year is that conservation is a painless process," he explained. "We hope many of the conservation habits we picked up will be retained. All we want people to continue to do is think before they use water and eliminate wasteful an non-essential uses."

Special Election Held June 6 To Fill LG School Board Seat

A special election will be held June 6 to fill the seat on the Lemon Grove School District Board of Trustees, a seat to be vacated March 3 with the resignation of Trustee James Dorman.

The Lemon Grove Board, meeting Tuesday night, decided in a split 4-1 vote to hold the special election rather than make an appointment to fill the seat.

Dr. Robert Sutton, District Superintendent, said the District would have to pay some $2,300 to hold the special election.

He added if the Board took the appointment route, there would be a 30 day period the appointment could be contested. If the appointee was contested by a resident of the Lemon Grove School District, the issue would be decided in the Office of the Registrar of Voters through a special election. The cost of that election would jump to some $8,800.

Citing the election of two years ago in which Lemon Grove businessman Craig Lake was seated, Board Chairman Henry Reinecke spoke out in favor of the special election.

"In the past," Reinecke said, "we have always held a special election since it allows some input from the constituency."

The single dissenting vote came from Trustee David Spizak.

"I'd like to be able to save the $2,300," Spizak argued.

Spizak opted for the board to gamble with the appointment in hopes no one would contest it.

In other business conducted by the school board.

— Trustee James Dorman issued a warning to the board to amend the bus purchase schedule to include consideration of the Jarvis-Gann Initiative.

"If the Jarvis-Gann measure passes," said Dorman, "we may have to scrap our bus fleet. The initiative's fiscal impact to special district, cities, and school districts, if it passes, will create chaos. Any kind of contract developed should be tied to the passage of the Initiative.

"If that measure passes," Dorman continued, "purchasing a bus will be the least of this board's worries."

Up before the board in Tuesday's meeting was the approval of bid forms, specifications, and purchasing schedules for one 78 and one 14-passenger school buses.

The board amended the schedule to direct bid release to occur sometime in late May so the final decision to buy could come after the June election. The Jarvis-Gann Initiative will be decided this June.

— The board gave the nod to Lemon Grove School District Band Director Harry Weisgerber to take his students to the Saddleback College Music Festival. The Festival will be held tomorrow.

— The Trustees also voted favorably on an agreement with the City of Lemon Grove for the installation of light fixtures at Lemon Grove Junior High.

— Also, the board okayed a request from Lemon Grove Bobby Sax to install temporary bleachers at LG Junior High.

— The board made two fund transfers, one adjusting the allocations for classroom supplies, the other to accommodate $56,823 in money coming into the district for school grounds improvement.

— The board entered into two contracts, one with San Diego State University for Social Work Team Services, and the other, a student teaching agreement with the University of San Diego. The approval of the agreement with USD marks the first time student teachers from that University have come to Lemon Grove.

— And, finally, the Board approved a candy sale for Palm Junior High.

SIGHT SCREENING — Dr. Gary Barnes, a Lemon Grove optometrist, checks the sight of a Vista La Mesa student during examinations sponsored by the Lemon Grove Lions Club.

Annual LG Lion's Eye Screenings Begin For Local First, 2nd, and 3rd Graders

Monies collected during the October Lemon Grove Lion's Club White Cane drive have been put to use for free eye examinations of young students of the Lemon Grove School System.

Each year, as they have done in the past six years, the Lemon Grove Lion's Club has taken part in the two state "White Cane" drive, a collection drive sponsored by the Lion's Club International of California and Nevada. The monies collected in that drive go to pay for the students' eye examinations.

The eye exams, which began on Tuesday with screenings of first grade students at Vista La Mesa School, are given by local optometrists Drs. Gary Barnes and James W. Cummins Jr., under the auspices of Mr. Jerry Legerton.

The exams cover refraction error, or near-sighted / farsightedness, and general eye health. All first graders as well as second and third graders who have never had eye exams are covered.

The dates for upcoming site screenings in the Lemon Grove School District are:

—February 21: San Miguel School, 9 a.m.

—February 28: San Altos, 8:30 a.m.

—March 7: Golden Avenue, 9 a.m.

—March 14: Mount Vernon, 9 a.m

—March 21: St. John of the Cross, 9 a.m.

—March 28: Monterey Heights, 9 a.m.

Dr. Cummins reiterated the eye screenings are based on a "modified clinical technique" and should not be used as a substitute for a complete eye exam.

"The screenings are by no means the substitute for a complete eye exam," the doctor explained. "Only the most obvious problems can be identified during the screenings.

"We are primarily interested," he continued, "in potential eye problems. If we run across what we think will become a future eye problem in a child, a notice will be sent home to the parents notifying them of this condition."

As a reiteration, the eye screenings are free.

There's An Answer

by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale

Tired of Verbal Abuse

Q. The problem is my husband's attitude toward me. Whenever I disagree with what he does or says his answer to m is: "If you don't like it, there's the door."

Never will he discuss with me the situation. It means nothing to him whether the problem bothers me.

I am supposed to do exactly what he wants and that's that, and if it bothers me that's tough.

When the children were small I felt pretty trapped and helpless but now that they are nearly grown I need to consider whether this is the way I must live the rest of my life.

His verbal abuse is worse than any physical beating. I love my husband and want to live with him but I can't continue under this tension. What can I do?

A. You sound pretty supine and docile. Don't be so wishy-washy. Undoubtedly you would get along much better if you stood up to this character.

When he says, "If you don't like it, there's the door," you say to him, "O.K., brother, that door is there for you, too." (And smile when you say it but be firm, too.) And add, "This is a partnership, and just where do you get off thinking you are a dictator?"

When you disagree with your husband, listen to yourself with a critical ear. Maybe your tone of voice sets him off. Try a more pleasant, positive approach when you discuss your views.

We have a booklet, "A First Aid Kit For Marriage," which has helped a number of people with problems such as yours, and a copy of it is on its way to you. Anyone reading this column who wishes a free copy may obtain one by writing to us in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Impossible Dream is Impossible

Q. I left my first wife after 35 years of marriage and married a young gal whom I dearly loved and who dearly loved me.

I was 30 years older than she, but ours was a perfect relationship, an Impossible Dream come true. But now she has turned into a lesbian.

I put up with it several years but finally left her and, believe it or not, went back to Wife Number One.

I still love Wife Number Two, who still loves me, but if I stayed with her I'd have to live with her desires being elsewhere.

I am heartbroken and at sea. I cannot believe what has happened to her and to me. Apparently there is no hope of lesbianism ever changing, or could it?

A. Sounds like that so-called "perfect relationship, an Impossible Dream come true" turned pretty sour. You are very fortunate that Wife No. One was big enough to take back a guy who showed no more intelligence than you did.

If you have any judgment at all and have any conception of which side your bread is buttered on, you'd better stick with that good woman, Wife Number One. Instead of being "at sea" and "heartbroken," you'd just better get with it and make this the real dream come true.

Feeling Sorry for Self

Q. My husband has a college degree, but has been unsuccessful in obtaining adequate employment.

The harder we work at life, the further we get behind.

We have been married five years and have been unable to have children.

The doctor can run tests on us, but they are costly and we have no savings.

I cannot stand to keep carrying this "feel sorry for us" attitude and longer. Others are of low income but are able to remain happy.

I wake up each morning wondering what tragedy or burden will take place next.

I know you cannot solve our problems, but I would appreciate some comfort and spiritual aid.

A. What you need, as we see it, is to cultivate — and do it fast — a positive attitude. Constant affirmation of the negative is very dangerous, for it attracts negative results.

If you and your husband will start picturing or imagining a good future and get out there and work for it, you will have it. Be warned that if you keep thinking according to your present style, you will have only trouble ahead. But you can change to the positive if you will to do so.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale to discuss in this column, write to them in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Performances on the Old Globe Theatre stage of "The Sunshine Boys" will continue nightly except Monday at 8 p.m. through March 19. plus Sunday matinees at 2 p.m.

Neil Simon is the most prolific and successful writer of comedy for the stage and screen today. Since his first play, "Come Blow Your Horn," opened in New York in 1961, he has seldom been without a play on Broadway. His 17 plays and dozen movies have established Simon as the "king of comedy writers."

"The Sunshine Boys" was the name of a vaudeville act before the two comedians split up twelve years before the play begins. Feuding over their 40-year career together, they have not spoken to each other since the break up.

One is retired to the suburban home of a niece, while the other lives alone in a shabby Manhattan hotel room, hoping for some type of theatrical employment.

Their reconciliation develops when a television special is planned on the history of comedy. A theatrical agent, and nephew of one of the vaudevillians, arranges a meeting to rehearse a famed comedy skit in preparation for the television special.

Their reunion and its outcome provides some of the best comedy in all of the plays by Neil Simon.

The supplier is the Burry Division of Quaker Oats Company. The packages have bold, colorful pictures of actual Girl Scouts with statements by the girls to help promote Girl Scouting.

This Week's RECIPE

HOME-COOKED

Beef Tongue

A tongue-in-chic delicacy is to take tender cooked slices of beef tongue, dipped into a spicy egg yoke batter, coated with equal parts of wheat germ and bread crumbs, and then browned quickly.

It is an experience you can't hold your tongue about.

Deviled Sliced Beef Tongue

- 1 cooked beef tongue*
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 egg yolks
- 3 teaspoons prepared mustard
- ¾ teaspoon curry powder
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- ½ cup vacuum packed wheat germ
- Salad oil

Remove skin from tongue. Slice crosswise into ¼ inch slices.

Mix lemon juice, egg yolks, mustard, curry powder, pepper and ½ teaspoon salt.

Mix crumbs, wheat germ and ¼ teaspoon salt.

Dip slices of tongue first into mustard mixture then into crumbs. Cook in oiled skillet over medium high heat until browned, turning once. Serve hot. Makes six servings.

*To Cook Beef Tongue: Place tongue and enough water to cover in large pot. Add 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon whole black peppers, two bay leaves, one teaspoon ground cumin and one-half cup white wine vinegar. Heat to boiling. Cover. Reduce heat and simmer 2½ hours or until tender.

Iceland is almost bare of trees.

Plimpton to Star At Los Al Track

LOS ALAMNTOS — A winner's Week with $5,000 in cash and prizes, a teenage handicapping sensation and a special race headlined by George Plimpton are on tap as the seventh annual Southern California Racing Assn. starts its 58-night run at Los Alamitos on Wenesday.

First post time for the action on the 5/8th mile oval is 7:45 p.m. with racing slate Monday through Saturday nights each week.

George Plimpton, who has gained fame as a writer and is willing to attempt about anything, will be trying his hand as a harness pilot when he faces four celebrity challengers in the George Plimpton Invitational on March 18. Plimpton has tried out as a quarterback for the pro football Detroit Lions, was a goalie for the Boston Bruins in a game against the former World Champion Philadelphia Flyers and learned to perform on the flying trapeze. His experiences with the Lions were the basis of his best selling book Paper Lion and the subsequent movie.

Southern California Racing Assn. will institute its first Winner's Week from February 27 to March 4 with the winners taking home $5,000 in cash and prizes. The competition consists of picking the most consecutive winners from the first to sixth races on each night's card for the week.

RECORD HOLDER — Francie Larrieu, world women's record holder in the mile, will make an assault on her own mark in the 12th annual Jack in the Box Invitaitonal indoor meet Friday at the S.D. Sports Arena.

Indoor Records May Fall In Friday's Indoor Meet

Ask any miler where he'd like to try for a world indoor record and invariably the reply would be "San Diego."

When 8 men take the track Friday night, February 17 in the Jack in the Box Invitational at the Sports Arena, the world indoor record of 3:54.9 will be in serious trouble.

The favorite will probably be front-running Dick Buerkle, the Rochester, N.Y., teacher who recently set the world indoor mark. But another traditional front runner in the race is Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, the world 1,500-meter record holder.

Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland, who had a spectacular 1976 indoor campaign and is a great indoor runner, is also in the race, as is Steve Scott, America's top miler and two perennial sub-four-minute runners, Paul Cummings and Mark Schilling.

To prove that the San Diego track is fast for milers, note that eight of the world's top 17 indoor milers have recorded their best marks at San Diego. Jim Rvun once tied the world indoor record of 3:56.4 here; Tony Waldrop set the world mark of 3:55.0 here; Wilson Waigwa of Kenya raced 3:55.7 here last year. And in that race, Scott's 3.56.5 bright him from relative obscurity into the international spotlight.

This 160-yard board track with high-banked turns was opened in 1967 and 15 world records have been established here. And local favorite Thom Hunt ran the mile in 4:02.1—but he's running the two-mile in this year's Jack in the Box meet.

Here is the schedule and the posttime for the 32 event meet::

L.A. Soccer Team Home is Hollypark

The L.A. Aztecs soccer team, which features international star George Best, will use the polo field at Hollywood Park for its training facility during the 1978 season.

The Aztecs are members of the North American Soccer League and will be playing their home games at the Rose Bowl. Their season begins April 2 and practice begins February 13.

Tom Galati Signs With S.D. Soccers

The San Diego Sockers continued preparations for the '78 North American Soccer League season with the signing of two defenders and the trading for one midfielder.

In a deal which sent midfielder Tom Galati and an undisclosed amount of cash to the Tulsa Roughnecks, San Diego signed veteran central defender Peter Nover.

Also signed by the Sockers for 1978 is defender Chris Horrocks, a Canadian citizen who appeared in 19 games for the club last year in Las Vegas.

Nover will be one of the biggest players in the NASL at 6-5 and 195 pounds. His presence will not only be highly noticed in the Sockers defense, but offensively as well as he has scored 99 goals in his past two seasons in the league. With Team Hawaii last year, Nover played 2324 minutes, which was all but 16 minutes of the season.

Sockers general manager Marvin Milkes said, "Nover is the perfect example of the type of team we're assembling. Everyone will be involved, and each player on the field will be a dangerous scoring threat. Nover is very offensive-minded, and has often been used the same as Frans Beckenbauer, being able to roam freely from his position in the back."

Chris Horrocks' addition brings the Sockers total of North American citizens to three, including Alan Mayer and Doug Wark. A very versatile defender, Horrocks can play anywhere on the backline, and he has also been a Canadian National Team selection.

Sockers Coach Hubert Vogelsinger has nearly completed his recruiting trip, which has included West Germany, Austria, Belgium, and the Netherlands. With training camp scheduled to open in early March, Vogelsinger is expected to arrive in San Diego within the next week.

Gulls-Bucks Old Time Game Draws Champoux

6 more players have been added to the rosters of the Gulls and Buckaroos as they prepare for the first ever Gulls / Buckaroos Oldtimers Hockey Game.

The contest will be played at the Sports Arena on Sunday evening, March 12.

Gulls accepting invitations are former team captain Earl Heiskala, winger Howie Hughes, and goaltender Bob Champoux. Champous was one of the original members of the Gulls when the team was organized in 1966.

Heiskala, Hughes and Champoux join Willie O'Ree, Gordie Sinclair, and El Ehrenverth on the list of those who have accepted invitations to play in the game. The proceeds from the game will benefit youth hockey in San Diego.

Buckaroos accepting invitations are Cliff Schmautz, Arnie Schmautz, and Norm Johnson. They are joined by Art Jones, Jim McLeod and Jim (Red Eye) Hay.

Tickets, which include free parking, are priced at $5.25, $4.25, and $3.25—the Gulls' old prices. Youngsters 12 years and under will receive a $1.00 discount on any price tickets.

Laura 'Beauty' Baugh Eyes Crosby Tee Title

By Irv Grossman

A beautiful face, a pretty swing but never in the winner's circle.

That's been the story of Laura Baugh, who looks as good as she plays and will be on display in the $165,000 Kathryn Crosby/Honda Civic Golf Classic at Rancho Bernardo March 15-19.

Winner of $47,000 last year and more than $150,000 in her 5 professional seasons. Baugh has yet to crack the victory stand. She has come close, though, with 6 runner-up finishes including the Patty Berg Classic last summer.

"I admit I'm anxious to win a tournament," she said. "Last year was my best financially but everyone is disappointed with my performance because I didn't win an event. I'm not disappointed with myself but the pressure is hard to control."

Baugh, of course, strikes a pose as magnificently as she strikes a golf ball. When she won the U. S. Amateur in 1971 and flashed that captivating smile, women's golf immediately blessed itself with the most commercially accepted played since Mickey Wright.

If the Baugh good looks were super, it was assumed so was her game.

Her game is darn good but even that hasn't been quite enough to satisfy the public.

"The public has expected more than I am capable of delivering," she said. "I can't get down on myself because I really feel my performance has been very creditable. But it sure would help if I could win a tournament."

She finished in a tie for 11th at last year's Honda Civic with a 72-hole score of 290, nine strokes behind winner Sandra Palmer.

"I think I'm going to like Rancho Bernardo," she said. "The course provides a premium on a straight tee shot and that's one of my strengths. And I've always considered Southern California my home. It's always a further incentive to do well in front of people you know."

Laura Baugh

The tournament also announced that Pam Higgins, a tournament winner last year (American Cancer Clinic) and the 19th money winner had entered. Higgins also is a strong factor in the eye-catching league. For comparison: Higgins is blonde, green-eyes, 5-5 and 120 pounds; Baugh is blonde, blue-eyed, 5-5 and 110 pounds.

Hayes Stops Mesa in 8th On Coliseum Boxing Card

By Max Goodwin

Gerald Hayes, a classy New York featherweight, knocked out Santiago "Sammy" Meza at 43 seconds of the 8th round Friday night on one of the two 10-rounders of a professional boxer doubleheader at the San Diego Coliseum.

Hayes, now fighting out of San Diego, outclasses Meza all the way. The crowd, unusually large for a rainy night (nearly 3,000), howled when the referee stopped the fight. Meza is an extremely popular fighter who had been voted "the most exciting fighter of 1977" by sportswriters.

Meza has great ability but needs more experience (he is 9-5-1) before meeting fighters such as Hayes.

Another decision which displeased fans came when bantamweight Santiago Hernandez of East LA was given a 10-round decision over Ramon Aguinaga of Tijuana . Our card had it for Aguinaga.

Mike Rundell, a San Diego welterweight, had Larry Roldan of Long Beach helpless when the 4-round fight was stopped at 2:29 of the first. Rundell has begun to gather a group of vocal fans with his slugging ability. He will continue to draw admirers—if he continues to win.

Middleweight Ricky Weigel of Pasadena won his 5-round bout when he decked James Weir of San Diego at 2:38 of the second round.

Light heavyweights Hilliard Edmons of San Diego and Jim Ingram of Long Beach fought to a 4-round draw.

Promoter Danny Millsap will continue his policy of admitting women and children without charge. Youngsters must be accompanied by an adult.

Millsap has booked "Irish" Mike Quarry to meet Ronnie Wilson in a 10-rounder main go February 25. Both fighters are veterans noted for punching ability. At least four other bouts will make up the Friday card which starts at 8:15 p.m.

The March 3 schedule starts at 11:30 with the second round at 2:50 p.m. Quarter finals will be at 6:15 with the consolation first round at 7:50.

The March 4 schedule:

Consolation second round at 10 a.m.; semi-finals 12 noon; consolation third round, 1:30; consolation fourth round, 2:30; consolation fifth and sixth places 5:45; consolation third and fourth places, 6:30 with the championship finals starting at 7:30 p.m.

Robertson Brothers Win Mexicali 300

Don and Doug Robertson, Spring Valley brothers, won Division 5 of the first Mexicali 300 SCORE off-road race Saturday.

The brothers were defending champions of the SCORE season in the VW Bug class, completing the 330-mile course in 8 hours, 7 minutes, 1 second.

About half of the 250 starters dropped out due to course conditions. One was Johnny Johnston of Lemon Grove who figures to be a top contender in any off-road competition.

CB's Go to Sheriff

The San Diego County Sheriff's Department has been presented with nine sets of 23-channel citizen band radios valued at $1,265 from the Radio Services Co., in Chula Vista.

The CB radios will be mounted in patrol units and used in conjunction with the County Mounties Program, where Sheriff's deputies maintain a cooperative effort with citizen band radio operators in providing helpful information and assistance.

S.D. Spikers Seeks First SCIVA Win

The San Diego State volleyball team faces another stern test as it seeks its first 1978 S.C. Intercollegiate Volleyball Assn. victory in a match against UCLA on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Peterson Gym.

The Aztecs have a non-league tune-up as they face Northrige State on Friday night, also in Peterson Gym at 7:30 p.m.

"I'd give UCLA as good a chance as any other school of taking the NCAA title this season," said Aztec coach Rudy Suwara.

The Bruins proved their strength at the UC Santa Barbara Collegiate Tournament the last weekend of January by taking the team title over a field which included league rivals Long Beach State, UCSB, and the Aztecs, who fell to the Bruins 14-16, 12-15.

But San Diego State won't be looking past Northridge to the UCLA match. "Northridge has already beaten a team in our conference, UC Irvine, so we know they can give us trouble, though they're not on the level of a UCLA yet," said Suwara.

The Aztecs dropped their SCIVA opener to defending NCAA National Champion USC last weekend, 5-15, 4-15, 8-15.

Among the few bright spots in the match were Rich Johnson's excellent passing and four kills, Carl Eissman's eight kills, Tim Meredith's six kills, and Chris Waldrop's five blocks.

Mariners Home Sat. for Game With Long Beach

For the San Diego Mariners of the Pacific Hockey League (PHL), the upcoming week will be a tough one. The San Diego skaters will be playing 5 games in 6 nights, with 3 of them being on the road.

The S.F. Shamrocks sit on top on the PHL with 12 wins, 8 losses and a tie for 25 points. The Mariners are in the basement of the league with 7 wins and 11 losses for 14 points. San Diego still has three games on hand in San Francisco.

Mariner Coach, Butch Barber, has stirred things by bringing to San Diego some new faces. Arriving in town this past weekend was 28 year old center Claude Chatre and 23 year old defenseman Bill Reed.

Chartre is a veteran player having played in the World Hockey Association, and the Southern, North American, Eastern and American Hockey Leagues. He was with the Hampton Gulls of the Southern League before coming here. Coach Barber knows Chartre's abilities, since the two played together for the Syracuse Balzers in the 1973-'74 season.

Reed is known as a very physical defenseman. He's a solid six foot, 195 pounds. He comes here from Alberta, Canada, where he has been playing for the Drumheller Miners, one of the top Senior Men's teams in Canada. In 1974 Ree was the 4th player drafted in the WHA. He was taken by the Michigan Stags, and did play for Baltimore and Calgary in the WHA.

Coach Barber isn't stopping here. He says, "There are a couple more players that'll be here in the very near future." But he says there aren't any names he can release at this time. He doesn't know yet when the two new additions will be added to the active roster. It'll probably be sometime this week.

Friday night, the Mariners play in Long Beach.

Saturday night it's San Diego against Long Beach at the Sports Arena. Then Sunday evening, it's back to the Cow Palace in San Francisco for the Mariners. All games can be heard on KSON Radio (1240 AM).

Attendance at the Mariner games has been steadily increasing. Mariner general manager Bob Paine says the paid average attendance is now 3,459..

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

Just in case you miss it, please let me report that another of San Diego's athletic alumnus had a solid shot at play acting the other night and he didn't do all that badly, considering he was playing a big, dumb, hard-nosed thug.

"Irish Jack" O'Halloran, the La Jolla Lip, played the heavy in last week's television production of Raymond Chandler's "Philip Marlowe—Private Eye" adventure "Farewell, My Lovely."

Robert Mitchum played the hero in the 1975 rendition of the grimy side of Los Angeles in pre-war 1940.

As a "private eye" Mitchum fit like a glove. He was weary, worldly and wisecracking all the way, but displayed enough old fashioned idealism to make him a very believable and very human kind of guy.

O'Halloran, on the other hand, mostly played O'Halloran. The only thing that didn't fit was his mouth. It was closed.

Irish Jack was cast as an ex-con named Moose Mallay. He was fresh out of the slammer and hired Mitchum to find an old girl friend, a nifty hooker named Velma who out grew her street ways and married into high society and wealth.

So much for the plot. The thing was, Irish Jack didn't get much to say. He was supposed to sulk around the set looking huge and nasty.

At least he filled the role. Jack is something like 6-feet, 8-inches and looks trim at 265 pounds. He certainly looked huge, but even with "nasty" makeup on his mug, Irish Jack just didn't look mean. And he really should be given more to say to be believable.

In real life, of course, Irish Jack never shuts up. In a bar, in a gym, in the ring, on the street, Jack is a talker.

Words were, and one supposes still are, as much a weapon to O'Halloran as were his suspect left and alleged right hand punch.

At one time O'Halloran was one of the better known jock characters in San Diego. You could run into him everywhere. Supermarkets, Bully's East, or West, The Sportswriters/Sportscasters weekly luncheon, at the Coliseum, even, once in a great while, working out in the gym.

Irish Jack claimed he was headed for the World's Heavyweight title and that upstart Ken Norton wasn't going to beat him to the crown. Norton beat him.

It just doesn't figure considering Irish Jack was still around to play a thug on TV.

Jack's problem is being who he is. He is Irish all the way from his curly black hair down to his wide, padded, cop looking feet.

From a distance, Jack even looked like a fighter. Sure and a lot of the lads made their fortune in the ring, though a real Irisher would just as soon fight in a bar as he would anywhere else.

But not Jack O'Halloran. Ah, he'd run a bluff now and again, but he never learned about the deep inside hate that a real fighter tames and calls the killer instinct.

Occasionally Jack would try to look fierce and mean. And he almost pulled it off a couple of times. But Jack was born with an Irishman's twinkle in his eye and laughter in his soul.

Even at his fiercest, Irish Jack was only a moment away from rip roaring, outrageous, rompish, zestful good humor.

It was his curse. He was, and one supposes still is, a likeable hulk of frisky mirth well mixed with a sense of sporting levity.

We certainly wish Irish Jack well on his thespianic future and we'll keep looking for him in the he-man heavy roles his size and mug seem to demand he'll play. He's pretty good at it.

For a long time there, he had us believing he was a fighter.

He remains close to the sport in his capacity as team physician for the State football squad.

Stamm, the choice in the current division, was an outstanding swimmer while at Crawford High, and he also competed for the Coronado Swim Association before enrolling at the University of Indiana. There he established new American and NCAA records in the 100-yard backstroke and made the NCAA All-America four times.

Saturday the Aztecs travel to UC Irvine for a 7:30 p.m. game with the Anteaters.

The Bulldogs are also the nation's best defensive team, allowing 22 opponents an average of just 53.1 points per game. Fresno State has held 9 of its opponents, including San Diego State, under 50 points this season.

State comes into tonight's showdown with a 14-8 overall mark and is 7-3 in conference play.

The Aztecs have won 12 of their last 15 games, but one of those losses was a 59-49 setback at the hands of Fresno State three weeks ago in Selland Arena.

Urban Development Strategy— A Study in Personal Control

By Calif. Senator John Stull

Lest any of us grow complacent, I remind you that the social engineers and planners are still at it. They are absolutely determined that big government is going to dictate how we all live our lives.

Last week I received a report from Governor Brown's Office of Planning and Research proclaiming that his staff of young advisors is putting the finishing touches on a "Strategy (that) will become the articulation of the State's policies on growth, development and environmental quality."

I have heard that phrase before.

In May, 1977, the Governor's Office of Planning and Research paraded before the legislature and the people of California a report entitled The Urban Development Strategy. No sooner was the plan unveiled, however, than the Brown administration began running for cover under a crossfire of criticism from legislators, businessmen and union leaders throughout the state alarmed that Governor Brown would seek to impose his philosophy of "lowered expectations" on Californians at the expense of individual freedom.

Beginning with a series of questionable assumptions (that California is running out of land for agriculture because of urban sprawl and that we can stop the "decay of our urban areas" by forcing Californians back into the inner city), the report advocated giving the state the authority to dictate how and where people should live in a "model" planned society — an alarming reversal of the notion that government exists to serve the people. But for a while, it seemed, this Strategy had been given a proper burial.

Now I find that the Urban Development Strategy is not dead — it only lay dormant while the Governor and his staff waited for the smoke to clear. After a little remodeling, the proposal has returned. The concept is the same. Only the packaging has changed (a little).

It would still do the following:

First, it would draw a circle around the major metropolitan areas of the state, such as San Diego, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. All future growth would take place only within the urban areas.

Second, housing and commercial development in the suburbs would be halted. In typical "lowered expectations" fashion, the report asserts that we are simply running out of energy and resources. Suburban living is obsolete, says the report, and besides, the cost of homes is so high few can now afford them.

Perhaps the most frightening part of the plan is that which talks about how the social model will be achieved. According to the report, government will be given the authority to force Californians to live in high-density apartment complexes. If apartment dwellers refuse to abide by the master plan, their property will be placed in state receivership.

Private industry investments will also be highly regulated. Refusal to speculate on inner-city development will result in the State's entering the commercial and industrial development field directly. Agriculture will be forced to comply with master zoning plans. Land use will be totally dictated by the bureaucrats in Sacramento or by officials in a new layer of government called the Council of Governments (COGS).

It may be just a coincidence that the five-year plan for this feat of social engineering is scheduled to begin in 1984. There should be no doubt that this Urban Development Strategy is the most revolutionary challenge to our democratic system that an elected California official has ever dared propose. The idea of total government regulation of our lives, for the good of the "State," is unacceptable.

I will, of course, fight the proposal if it comes before the legislature. But it may simply come upon us through administrative action if every agency within this administration makes all of its decisions based upon this "strategy."

I urge you to let the Governor know your feelings on the matter.

Your involvement is crucial. Managed growth has proved unworkable. For proof you need only look at the nations around the world that have tried centralized planning. But, more importantly, it means surrendering cherished freedoms which, once lost, will not be easily retrived.

CentFed S&L Offers Movie Studio Trip

Area residents are invited by Central Federal Savings and Loan Assn. to take a tour of the world's largest and busiest movie studio, Universal Studios, during Central Federal's "Fun Days" beginning Saturday.

Coupons are now available at the College Grove office, College Grove Shopping Center, for the special "Fun Days" offer which includes a 20% discount on a tour of Universal Studios, as well as resort-style lodging and dining.

Sally DeLong, manager of the office, said this is a golden opportunity to see what really happens "behind the scenes" of today's popular TV shows and movies.

"The Glamor Tram takes you on a two and a half hour guided tour of the studio's 420 acres," she added.

At nearby Victoria Station, located at the entrance to Universal Studios, Central Federal is offering the choice of a free skillet of mushrooms or chocolate mousse with the purchase of any meal as visitors dine in the splendor of a fanciful re-creation of London's famous train station.

The "Fun Days" offer is capped by a two for one savings on accomodations at Beverly Garland's Howard Johnson Resort Lodge in North Hollywood when used in a Friday-Saturday combination. A 15% discount applies on any room Sunday through Thursday during the Central Federal promotion.

DeLong said the coupons are available to all office vis-

Pete Chacon To Go For Fifth Term

Assemblyman Pete Chacon (D-San Diego) will seek his fifth term in the California State Assembly representing Central San Diego, the City of Lemon Grove and the City of Coronado.

"With eight years of experience in the State Assembly behind me, I feel that I am in a position to be of strong and maximum service to the citizens of my district," Assemblyman Chacon said.

"Upon election, I established a non-partisan Citizens' Advisory Council which has met each month with membership open to any interested constituent. Moreover, this legislator/advisory council partnership has resulted in constituent-sponsored legislation and many districtwide legislative workshops on education, tax reform, housing, and other issues," the lawmaker added. "In addition, I have established a record of constituent service with an accessible office in the geographic heart of the district to help citizens with their problems and cut through bureaucratic redtape," Chacon said.

In the State Assembly, Assemblyman Chacon has served on numerous committees and commissions. He now sits as Chairman of the Assembly Committee on Housing and Community Development, and is a member of the Human Resources Committee and the Public Employees and Retirement Committee.

Though Chacon has introduced, co-authored and supported legislation on virtually every issue of major importance to his district, he is well known for his authorship of legislation which created the State Housing Finance Agency and numerous laws benefiting consumers and senior citizens.

In filing his Declaration of Intent to run for reelection, Assemblyman Chacon submitted signatures of citizens in his district supporting his re-election bid.

BofA Real Estate Loans Up 71%

LOS ANGELES — The long-term real estate loan volume for Bank of America increased 71 percent during 1977 to 2.65 billion from $1.55 billion in the previous year.

The bank also made short-term construction loans totaling $1 billion in 1977, an increase of 73 percent from $578 million in 1976.

Loans for single-family dwellings totaled $1.55 billion and accounted for 58 percent of the long-term dollar volume during 1977. They made up 87 percent of the 35,159 loans made during the year.

Long-term loans for income properties (including residential, commerciel, industrial and other) amounted to 1.10 billion, or 42 percent of the long-term total. They accounted for 13 percent of the number of loans made.

The bank's real estate loan outstandings of $7.7 billion at the end of the year were up nearly 20 percent from $6.4 billion at the end of 1976.

Haley said the bank's new five-year variable rate home loan is showing a good market acceptance by both home buyers and realtors.

Court Halts Forced Retirement Of Classified School Employees

A Sacramento Superior Court judge has issued a temporary order halting the forced retirement of classified school employees on the basis of age.

Judge Frances Newell Carr issued a temporary restraining order to that effect at the request of Attorney Robert Blake, chief counsel for the California School Employees Association (CSEA).

The ruling is based on provisions of Assembly Bill 568, an emergency measure which became law on September 16.

The bill, authored by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre (D-Los Angeles), allows public employees to continue working beyond the previously mandatory retirement age of 67.

It also refers to necessary certification of an employee's competence, but according to CSEA, "does not name any entity to adopt rules and regulations establishing guidelines for determining competence of school employees."

Administrators for the state's Public Employees Retirement System (PERS), however, have directed that county school superintendents establish appropriate guidelines and certify competence of those "overage" employees who want to continue working.

In CSEA's petition to Judge Carr, Blake maintained the PERS board lacks any legal authority to grant school boards and county superintendents the right to make those guideline decisions.

Blake also noted that during any interim period (pending legal clarification of the issues), a significant number of classified school workers age 67 or over could be forced to retire against their will.

Although PERS spokesmen argued against CSEA's position, Judge Carr issued a temporary order restraining PERS from retiring any school employee member of the system, except on specific written request by the employee involved.

Judge Carr also set March 6 as the date for a hearing to determine whether or not a permanent restraining order should be issued.

Crisis Service Role Expanded

The Defy Counseling Line will shift its program emphasis from a drug hotline to a general crisis telephone service following unanimous approval by the San Diego County Board of Supervisors.

Professional staff will assist callers with mental health problems such as anxiety, depression and suicidal thoughts by providing crisis intervention, problem solving and counseling services. Staff will also continue to provide drug information and counseling.

"Of the average 2,900 calls received on the hotline each month, about 500 are mental health related, and about 90 are from suicidal persons," said Richard Jacobsen, director of the County Department of Substance Abuse, which administers the Defy Counseling Line.

"Although mental health crisis telephone intervention services are reimbursable from the State, Defy has been classified as a drug hotline and has not been eligible to receive these funds.

"The Board's approval makes us eligible to recive an annual maximum of $75,000 from the State. We will now be able to provide a 24-hour, county-wide crisis service with a reduced net County cost of about $14,000."

Since the Board of Supervisors created the Defy Counseling Line eight years ago as a drug education and counseling line, staff have assisted a quarter of a million callers.

In April, 1970, the first month of service, staff answered 312 calls. Currently, staff receive 2,900 calls each month, an average of 35,000 calls per year.

Firefighters Needed

Applications will be accepted this Tuesday through Friday for seasonal firefighters. Forms are obtainable from the Department of Forestry, 2249 Jamacha rd., El Cajon, 92020.

Applications will be accepted from men and women who are 18 years of age by March 20. Firefighting duties include fire prevention, fire fighting, station and equipment maintenance. The number to call is 442-0874.

DMV Record Keeping Switch Believed to Save $½ Million

More than half a million dollars annually will be saved by the Department of Motor Vehicles by changing its procedures for filing driver's license information.

And State Motor Vehicle Account could be further enriched by $400,000 a year if DMV were to charge other agencies the cost of furnishing them data used for non-vehicle-related purposes.

Two DMV systems — one manual known as "Soundex," and one computerized — are used for many of the same identifying purposes. If the manual system were eliminated and the computerized system upgraded, savings of $520,000 would result after a four-year transition period to phase in the modified system, according to a study presented to the Legislature this week.

DMV Director Doris V. Alexis for discontinuing the manual system will be prepared by March 1, and the switch would begin by July 1, 1978.

The Soundex file, which contains some 18 million documents arranged so that names which sound alike are filed together, is used when information is needed on a person whose driver's license number is not known. This manual system gets about 309,000 such information requests per year.

In addition to providing identifying information on individuals, the manual system provides copies of driver's license and identification card photographs (mugshots) to governmental agencies, primarily law enforcement.

269,000 mugshots are provided per year. Eighty percent of these mugshots go to law enforcement agencies, the other 20 percent to other governmental agencies, including the California Youth Authority and Department of Benefit Payments/Department of Justice Parent Locator Service.

A DMV study shows that an upgraded computerized capa-a successful identification from $4.55 to $1.24 per item.

The report recommends that non-vehicle-related requests for DMV information by governmental agencies no longer be supplied without charge, or that DMV be funded from a non-Motor Vehicle Account source for the costs it incurs, estimated at $400,000 annually.

The report notes that eliminating the manual system could prevent making some 5,000 to 8,000 yearly identifications of individuals who receive, through fraud or error, more than one driver's license.

These multiple issuances result in 500 criminal complaints and 850 administrative actions against the individuals.

In addition, some 100 to 200 special searches made yearly on the manual system to support major investigations, such as kidnappings and bank robberies, would be more difficult.

But in the contest of 18 million documents, the difficulties caused by eliminating the manual system are insignificant against the $520,000 in annual savings, in the view of DMV management.

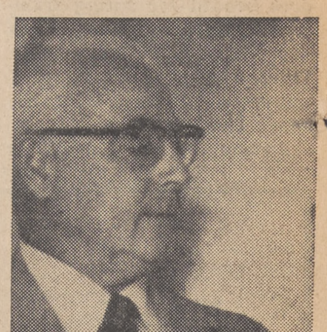
The DMV report was requested by the Legislature June 24, 1977, as an item in the supplemental report of the Committee of Conference on the Budget Bill for 1977-78.

While the phasing out of Soundex to achieve the $520,-0000 annual savings can be done by the DMV director, legislative action would be required to permit DMV to charge other agencies for non-vehicle-related use of file information.

Monies from the Motor Vehicle Account are used to support the operations of DMV and the California Highway Patrol.

Some funds from the account are earmarked for the Air Resources Board and the Department of Justice, and any surplus goes into the State Highway Account for

Metric System; How it Works



By John Corbett

THE METRIC SCALE

Because most of our weighing is done on earth we can put the cylindrical unit of mass on the scale and say, "This is the weight of the kilogram."

We can mark the scale to indicate the kilogram's weight. We can put a bag on the scale and fill the bag with sugar until it weighs an amount equal to that of the kilogram. We can put another bag on the scale and fill it with beans until it weighs an amount equal to that of ten kilograms.

We may become careless in our speech and say, "The bag of sugar weighs a kilogram — the bag of beans weighs ten kilograms," but we should not become careless in our thinking.

In our thinking we should remember that the bag of sugar weighs an amount equal to the weight of the kilogram and the bag of beans weighs an amount equal to ten times the weight of the kilogram. We should think of the kilogram as the unit of mass. To evaluate the weight of other objects. we compare their weight with the weight of that platinum cylinder — the unit of mass — the kilogram.

Multiples and submultiples of the kilogram and their symbols are shown below.

megagram Mg (capital M, small g) kilogram kg (small k, small g)
gram g (small g)
milligram mg (small m, small g)

Whereas other metric units are related on a ten to one basis, these units are related on a one thousand to one basis.

Megagram = 1 000 000 grams
Kilogram = 1 000 grams
Milligram = 0.001 grams

A megagram (1 000 kilograms) is a metric ton. (Sometimes spelled, "Tonne.")

Griffen Resigns

Dear Editor:

The month of March 1978 will mark my 27th anniversary with the District as a Director representing District 3, generally the Lemon Grove area.

During the past 19 years it was my privilege and pleasure to be Chairman of the Board and President of the District, and during this period most of you also have been serving the District.

I hope you are as proud as I am of the accomplishments the District has achieved and you will continue to formulate policy, under which the Staff operates the District, policy that keeps pace with the ever changing times.

Most of you are aware of my plans to retire when I reached the age of 70. That age has come and gone and now Margaret and I have decided that it is time for me to be relieved from some of my civic responsibilities.

This letter is to inform you that I will resign, as Director, on March 1, 1978.

It is my intention to continue to represent you on the Board of Directors of the San Diego County Water Authority and also to retain my Directorship on the Board of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, since these agencies only meet once a month and are therefore no great burden.

I hope to keep in touch with the District and if, at any time in the future, you feel my experience and knowledge can be helpful to you, I will always be available for consultation.

Sincerely,
Harry Griffen
Director,
Helix Water District

Solar Advocacy

Dear Editor:

In the year that promises to be the one in which solar energy development finally emerges from its infant stage to become a legitimate national industry, a significant solar energy news event will be taking place in San Diego, California, and we would like to invite you to participate.

The event is the San Diego Solar Triad (February 23-26), high-lighted by Project START Standards, Testing and Accreditation Research Transfer) Phase II.

Under the final grant issued by ERDA (now the Department of Energy), the Project START workshops will bring together federal, state and local people involved in the working out of problems regarding testing / performance standards for the certification of solar equipment in an attempt to make forthcoming federal and state regulations compatible.

Not since the turn of the century has an industry gone from prototype to maturity in such a short time, and before a nation-wide distribution process can begin, a coherent set of standards for certification, labelling and accreditation is necessary.

A lack of compatible standards will lead to higher costs (due to the need for manufacturers to produce a different collector for each local code) and the stifling of the industry.

Presently, groups such as the National Bureau of Standards and the California Energy Resources Conservation and Development Commission are working toward compiling the basic outline for an updated standards porgram.

Along with input from the Solar Energy Industries Association and the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute's Solar Division, these guidelines will form the starting point for the Project START workshops.

There, with representatives from HUD, DOE and independent testing laboratories, we will discuss the best ways to develop and initiate the needed regulations that will promote public confidence in solar energy hardware, assure quality production and installation standards for solar equipment, and enable the solar industry to begin national distribution efforts, secure in the knowledge that local codes will not differ radically.

The opportunity to shape the rapidly growing solar energy industry belongs to all of us. Your participation in this event (including prior and post-conference coverage) will be extremely helpful in assuring that the public is well informed as to the scope and importance of these standards.

Only by encouraging comments and criticisms from a wide range of those who will be affected by the regulatory decisions being made can we hope to reasonably produce a responsible set of standards that is equally fair to consumers, manufacturers and installers.

I sincerely hope that you will be able to join us for the San Diego Solar Triad. In addition to the Project START workshops, we will have a solar technology exhibit by SOLARCON, and a Solar Economics Seminar and Installation Clinic.

Together these programs will offer an educational experience that will be valuable in numerous ways, both to the general public and to your future news gathering activities in this area.

If you would like more information on this event, please contact me at the address given below. I will respond as soon as possible to all requests.

Sincerely,
Jim Howard
Director—Public Education Programs,

Marston Affair

January 31, 1978

Dear Editor:

The House Republican Policy Committee calls for the appointment of a Special Prosecutor and a Select Committee of the Congress to investigate the allegations of conspiracy to obstruct justice and obstruction of justice arising from the political dismissal of David W. Marston, former U.S. Attorney in Philadelphia.

The Republican Policy Committee believes that "The Marston Affair" is the prelude to uncovering the political corruption of massive abuse and mishandling of millions of dollars of public funds belonging to the citizens of Pennsylvania and the American taxpayers. ""The Marston Affair" demands that the Democrat controlled Congress and the Carter Administration display zealous efforts to expose political corruption and criminal activities.

Spurred by the Speaker's personal attack on Mr. Marston as a "vicious Republican political animal" even though Marston's efforts included the conviction of two Republicans and recent press reports of repeated attempts to stifle successful investigations of political corruption in Pennsylvania, the Republican Policy Committee calls upon Congressional Democrats and the Carter Administration to support the appointment of a Special Prosecutor and Select Committee as a commitment to the principle of "Equal Justice Under Law."

Del Clawson, Chairman
Republican Policy Committee U.S. House of Representatives

CITIZEN AWARD — Verna Quinn is given the Outstanding Citizen Award by Supervisor (4th District) Jim Bates.

Former Grovan Wins Sups Award

Supervisor Jim Bates selected Verna Quinn of Southeast San Diego County as "Citizen of the Month" for the Fourth District for the month of February.

In making the selection, Supervisor Bates cited Mrs. Quinn for her work with the Southeast Development Committee. Mrs. Quinn has been a member of the Executive Committee of that group since 1972. The Development Committee is actively involved in revising the Southeast Community Plan and working for balanced housing in the community.

In addition, Quinn has been a member of the Community Resource Panel for Air Quality Management, the Southern Area Advisory Board for Parks and Recreation, and Common Cause. A recipient of the Honorary Life Service Award from the PTA, Quinn has a Lifetime School Nurse credential.

"Verna Quinn has been dedicated and unselfish in her work in the community," commented Supervisor Bates. "She has provided us with an example of community involvement that we all can be proud of."

Quinn lived in Lemon Grove on Tweed street several years ago and was active in local PTA's at all levels and worked with the L.G. Youth Center.

Criminal Code Bill Deemed 'A Prosecutor's Dream'

The Senate has adopted an amendment by Senator Alan Cranston (D., Calif.) to change a section in the proposed criminal code reform bill (S. 1437) which has made the bill "a prosecutor's dream."

The Cranston amendment added language calling for strict construction of criminal laws instead of the "wide ranging interpretations" the previous bill allowed.

"The amendment establishes the principle: a new federal criminal code must not unduly expand the criminal jurisdiction of the federal government nor in any way infringe upon existing rights and liberties of the people," Cranston said.

The offending sentence, in Section 112 under "(a) Construction in General", states the provisions of the bill "shall be construed in accordance with the fair import of their terms to effectuate the general purposes of this title."

"This provision left standing by itself would give the government grounds for wide-ranging interpretations of the law," Cranston said. "It would enable the government to argue what the words of a particular statute mean, in effect, whatever the government wants them to mean 'to effectuate the general purposes' of the criminal code."

"Such a prosecutorial device would clearly work to the detriment of due process fairness. Section 112, if unamended, would fulfill a prosecutor's dream, particularly when he is arguing against defense motions to dismiss or quash an indictment or a subpoena."

Cranston cited as an example the present espionage law which makes it a crime to "communicate" information to a foreign power that might be considered harmful to the U.S.

"The Supreme Court, applying a strict construction to the law, has ruled that publication in a newspaper or magazine does not constitute 'communication' in the sense intended by the law," Cranston said.

"But under a less strict interpretation, publication in the press obviously could be considered 'communication'. Reporters and editors could be subject to criminal prosecution for printing something an overly secret and security-minded administration doesn't want made public.

The Cranston amendment adds the following clause to the sentence in Section 112: ". . . particularly to assure definition (of the offense) and notice of the conduct prohibited in accordance with the rule of strict construction as applied by the federal courts".

This change, Cranston reinterated, "restored to our law the time-honored maxim that penal statutes are to be strictly, or narrowly, constructed, particularly where they may affect the exercise of Constitutional rights".

Jarvis Prop. (C'ont)

gional centers until after the election to save about $4.5 million in pre-construction costs should the Jarvis-Gann initiative pass.

This action also provides time to evaluate the two centers without a County committment to a $93 million bond issue.

The Board unanimously voted to freeze $3.5 million in this year's budget of revenue sharing funds for the downtown office facility, pending a special report next week on securing these funds.

Supervisors directed the two centers' cost to be limited to the total amount that could be funded from an $8.5 million or less annual payment ($93 million gross bonding estimate).

They also directed the Chief Administrative Officer (CAO) to examine alternate financing methods for the downtown facility and report March 28.

The CAO was also directed to establish and report priorities for eliminating capital projects during budget hearings and to study establishment of a capital facilities improvement fund so the County is not adversely affected by financial problems related to the capital program.

King Tut's Treasures In L.J. Lecture Topic

George Barker, Vice President of Marketing for the Edward Marshall Boehm Studios in New Jersey and a nationally-known Egyptologist, will arrive in La Jolla on Sunday for a lecture and slide program on the Treasures of Tutankhamun, Ancient Egypt and the Boehm Tutankhamun Porcelain Collection.

The lecture will be presented at 1 and 4 p.m. at La Jolla's newest porcelain art sculpture gallery, Guddie's La Jolla located at 7840 Girard ave.

The event is open to the public; however seating is limited and advance reservations are required.

The Boehm Studios is the firm commissioned early last year by the Republic of Egypt to re-create in porcelain the Treasures of Tutankhamun.

Although the firm is only 27 years old, examples of their art can be found in important collections from Peking to Paris and from Moscow to Michigan.

During the Nixon presidency, the Boehm Studios were commissioned to create a new symbol of peace to replace the old symbol, a dove. Boehm craftspeople created three life-size swans of which one is in the Smithsonian Institute, one was presented to Mao Tse-tung in China by former President Nixon on his China trip and the third was auctioned in London for $150,000 and later anonymously donated to the Vatican Museum in Rome.

The Treasures of Tutankhamun are currently touring the United States as a salute to our earlier Bicetennial Celebration. Although there were actually over 6,000 Treasures in the Boy King's Tomb, Egypt selected 55 to tour the United States—or one treasure for each year from 1922 (the year the Tomb was discovered) to 1976 when we celebrated our Bicentennial.

The L.A. County Museum of Art will exhibit the Treasures of Tutankhamun in mid-February through June; however, the entire exhibit has been sold out. Lloyds of London has incured these Treasures, Barker reports, for in excess of $250 million dollars.

Telephone Bills Down – Slightly

Who says the only way taxes go is up?

Not on your phone bill, that's for sure.

In fact, the federal excise tax on telephone calls and services is a per cent less this year than it was last.

Moreover, by 1982, the tax will be dropped altogether under terms of the Excise, Estate and Gift Tax Adjustment Act of 1970.

That act stipulates the federal excise tax on communication services will be reduced by one per cent effective the first of each succeeding year until Jan. 1, 1982. At that time the tax will be totaly repealed.

What this means to Pacific Telephone customers is that they'll be paying only a four per cent rate this year, compared to five per cent in 1977 and next year, the figure will drop to three per cent.

Come 1982, of course, the tax will be eliminated entirely.

High School Proficiency Exam Applications Due

SACRAMENTO — The deadline for registration to take California High School Proficiency Examinations has been set for February 22.

The State Department of Education will take reservations by mail up to that date for the test to be given on March 18.

Some 69,000 students have taken the exam since it was first offered in 1975 and 39 percent have passed, receiving the Certificate of Proficiency equivalent to high school graduation.

The test is open to all persons 16 years and older. Students under the age of 18 must have their parents' permission to take the exam.

The fee for the test is $10.

Reservations for the test may be made by picking up the applications at high schools and most public libraries then mailing the forms to the High School Exam, Box 100, Berkeley, CA 94701.

Dime Fare for Car-Poolers On Coronado Bridge Always

All vehicles with three or more ridesharers can cross the San Diego-Coronado Bay Bridge anytime for only ten cents.

Elimination of the time restriction and extension of the reduced fare was approved by the California Toll Bridge Authority in their meeting last month in Sacramento.

The action was taken in an effort to cut air pollution and congestion by reducing the number of vehicles entering Coronado. With the new rules, ridesharers with three or more in a vehicle can cross the bridge seven days a week, 24 hours a day, for only ten cents.

For individuals who want to share-a-ride, call Commuter Computer at 237-POOL. It has free information on subscription buspools, vanpools, and a listing of over 25,000 people all over the county who wish to carpool.

Also, the North Island Assn. is actively seeking ride-sharing for those working on the Naval Base in Coronado. To date, with their efforts, 12 subscription buses feed into North Island daily.

To obtain the special ten-cent rate, carpools, vanpools, buspools, taxis. etc., must purchase a ticketbook (40 tickets —$4) in advance, either at the tool booths, or the toll plaza Coronado.

ICC Hearings on SD&AE RR To Be Heard in S.D. April 4

Long-awaited hearings by the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) on the proposed abandonment of the San Diego and Arizona Eastern Railway have been scheduled to start April 4 in San Diego and are expected to last about three weeks, San Diego Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin said.

Van Deerlin said that during the proceedings the burden of proof will be on the Southern Pacific Transportation Co. which owns the SD&AE line and wants to get rid of it.

SP will furnish the initial witnesses who will be subject to cross-examination by individuals and organizations opposing abandonment, but opponents also will be heard.

The SD&AE tracks run from San Diego to El Centro and are San Diego's only direct rail link to the east. The line was damaged by Hurricane Kathleen in September, 1976, and has not been repaired.

Abandonment is opposed by local governments, the Unified Port District, area chambers of commerce and businesses which say they depend on the rail service.

Following the hearings, the presiding administrative law judge, who has not yet been selected, will write an initial decision. Interested parties will then have an additional period of commenting after which the full ICC will make its own ruling.

Van Deerlin said the entire process should take about 18 months.

County Tax Collector To Seek Re-election

County Treasurer/Tax Collector James E. Jones announced today that he will be a candidate in the June 6 election for a full term in the newly combined offices of tax collector and treasurer.

Jones was first elected tax collected in 1968 and was re-elected in 1970 and 1974. He assumed the dual position on February 1, following the retirement of County Treasurer Delevan Dickson. Jones said he would ask the voters to return him to the 4-year office beginning Jan. 8, 1979.

Jones emphasized his 24 years of experience in the county tax collector's office. The office of treasure/tax collector, he said, requires an administrator with the highly technical and professional background necessary to handle average daily investments of more than $350 million in county, school and district funds, as well as the $250 million employees' retirement fund.

"An administrator with the ability to get tax dollars processed quickly and into interest-bearing accounts can save money for the taxpayers," Jones said."A good treasurer should also be able to decrease the load on the county's property owners by careful investment of the funds entrusted to him."

Jones noted that San Diego County had the lowest percentage of unpaid taxes of any of the state's major counties and that the $20 million in interest earned on tax funds put the county among the top three counties in the entire state in earnings on those funds. The retirement fund portfolio earned another $18 million, he said.

The combining of the county tax collector's office with that of the treasurer was authorized by a charter amendment passed by county voters in the November 1976 election. The amendment provided that the remaining officer would assume both positions if either the tax collector or the treasurer left office before Jan. 8, 1979, when the first full term is to begin.

Jones commented that while the added duties of the treasurer's office have increased his responsibilities, the recent hiring of a professional investment counselor to handle the retirement fund has enabled him to concentrate on the overall administration of the system.
